

Stunning newly built mansions on the canals where ashes once were

Out with the old, in with the new... this well known slogan is highly appropriate for the waterways of St Francis, particularly the canals area where 76 stately homes were burnt to the ground two years ago.

There has been a hive of activity on the canals since with the construction of and renovation of many houses taking place. The thatch roofs have mostly made way for the slate and the more Old Dutch type houses have been transformed into stunning mansions, upmarket and gracious.

The once sombre air of the houses and much of a muchness in décor and design of the earlier canals homes have started to disappear in favour of the new and modern.

Huge windows and idyllic veradahs with lights overlooking the canals now glisten in the sun while at night they simply sparkle like the interiors making this truly a playground for the rich and famous...

(Thanks to Little Venice Adventures for the photographic trip around).
