More than just service with a smile... going that extra mile to please guests

During the prestigious PRO-AM tournament at St Francis Links last month golfers and media sitting relaxing at tables just before prize giving suddenly spotted two men on their knees pulling out nails from a floorboard on the deck.

And then their amazement turned to complete astonishment as the pair actually ripped the long floor board open and with torches began searching underneath!

The crowd was even more incredulous when one of them grabbed something from below and held his hand aloft to show the crowd a gold ingot!

Visiting golfer, Laurence Barends, had accidentally dropped his wedding ring on the floor, which rolled and fell below through a slit on the wooden deck. He and friends were unable to retrieve it manually and so Barends was understandably upset as he did not wish to return home without it.

But upon hearing of his plight, the dilemma of a wedding ring stuck under the floor boards posed no problem to Links' management. Barends was immensely impressed and grateful at how in a jiffy, staffs simply tore up the floor boards and located the ring!!
