

More than 1-million SA youth to undergo paid work experience

President Cyril Ramaphosa launched an Employment Service (YES) programme at the end of March at a media briefing in Fourways, Johannesburg.

Ramaphosa met the first 100 young people to participate in the YES initiative, which aims to see up to one-million young South Africans being offered paid work experience over the next three years, as part of placing the needs of and opportunities for young people at the centre of inclusive economic growth.

Led by the President, the YES initiative is a collaborative effort between government, business, labour and civil society. The initiative is informed by research, which has shown that one year of work experience, coupled with a CV and reference letter, increases a young person's chances of finding employment by three times.

The Youth Environmental Service Programme emphasises three pillars:

- Community development / service
- Accelerated learning and skills development
- Exit opportunities

The programme has three channels through which employment opportunities can occur:

- Corporate work experiences: businesses that participate in the programme create one-year paid positions for youth aged between 18 and 35, in addition to these organisations' current employment numbers, YES is an additive;
- SMME host placements: businesses that do not have the capacity to place

- more people in their organisations, have the option of sponsoring the salary for a one-year placement in small and medium enterprises (in year one for 7 to 10 months); and
- SMME development: young people are empowered to start and grow their own businesses, with support from YES in the form of training, seed funding and value-chain integration.

Get Flu Vaccines - National Institute says

To avoid getting flu, the National Institute of Communicable Diseases (NICD) has advised the public to get vaccinated.

Getting the flu vaccine can reduce flu illnesses, visits to the clinic or to doctors rooms, missed work and school due to flu, as well as prevent flu-related hospitalizations," said the NICD.

The influenza season in South Africa occurs in the winter months and is expected to start in the coming weeks. On average, the season begins in the first week of June. However, recently, the season has started as early as the last week of April and as late as the first week of July.

The influenza vaccine for the 2018 season is currently available at public health facilities and at pharmacies.

"It takes about two weeks after vaccination for protective antibodies to develop, it is recommended that people get vaccinated as soon as possible to ensure that they are protected before influenza season starts," said the NICD.

According to the NICD, the best time to get the flu vaccine is before the season starts between March-June but getting it later will protect individuals during the rest of the season.

Influenza viruses are constantly changing and immunity from vaccine lasts for about a year. It is therefore important to get vaccinated each year before the influenza season starts.

Vaccination of people with higher risk of severe flu directly protects them from flu infections. Other vulnerable groups that can benefit from the flu vaccine include pregnant women, the elderly and people with chronic illnesses.

"It is also essential to practice good hygiene by properly and frequently washing hands and preventing the spread of the virus by coughing or sneezing into a tissue to help prevent the spread of seasonal influenza. People who have flu-like symptoms should stay at home to avoid infecting others," said the NICD.
